LEADING THE WAY TO A HEALTHIER WORLD.

Are you ready to lead change? Today more than ever, health organizations seek candidates for managerial positions who are ready to hit the ground running with the competencies required to problem-solve, strategize, and lead diverse teams. With a Master of Health Administration (MHA) degree from the University of Kentucky

College of Public Health, graduates are prepared for management and administrative positions in hospitals, health systems, and other health organizations. Designed primarily for full-time students early in their careers, the program also admits mid-career professionals seeking part-time study.

“UK’s MHA program has given me many opportunities to gain administrative experience in health systems. This program opens doors to a wide range of jobs and fellowships. It’s truly more than just a degree.”
